

After fourteen years in Cumberland's Bud Building Complex, Lake Shore Environmental has moved! The Bud complex was showing its age and with the addition of additional staff, it was time to move. LSE had just completed environmental due diligence investigations of an abandoned commercial building at 359 Putnam Pike in Smithfield and the new owner shared that he planned to gut the building to create mainly office space. Considering that this would cut our commute to half of what it was with instantaneous access to Route 295, it was an easy decision. Being a gut rehab we were able to design our space with CAD. Improvements include a spacious conference room, field equipment closet and wide open work stations and hallways.

The move was made March 1, 2019 and there were many challenges along the way. We are now up to speed and enjoying the new space. Come visit us or schedule your next meeting at 359 Putnam Pike, Suite 105!
